

Grip Strength

Neuromuscular function and muscle strength were assessed with a Bioseb grip strength meter. Three trials each of fore paws and all paws are performed immediately following each other.

The assay was performed at 9 weeks of age across all pipelines on which it was performed. It was also always performed in combination with other assays looking at neurological function and, pipeline dependent, a morphological assessment. The diet the mice were fed was pipeline dependent.